PREFACE

In presenting the history and genealogy as contained in the following pages the author does not for one moment claim to have included the issue of each line or of each marriage, nor of all those descended from each family, but rather to carry out the descent of the direct line of the family to the first American ancestor, from whence those descended can arrive to that position where they can conveniently trace their lineage from the first ancestor arriving in America.

In the forthcoming pages many who have no record or who have not become members of any patriotic bodies or who have failed to avail themselves at a critical period of the requisite information, will find much aid in being enabled to trace to some ancestor their lineage as contained herein.

It may be very difficult in time to trace the lineage of those who, living in a country filled with an admixture of various races, to prove their pure blood from American ancestors who settled in this country, unless we keep a true record.

Although there are many references to the distinguished Bayard family, there appears to be no connected line of descent from the three brothers, Balthazer, Petrus and Colonel Nicholas Bayard, the sons of Samuel Bayard and Ann Stuyvesant, which can be found together in one book. The author does not pretend to give all the lines and issues of the different branches, nor of all the children of each marriage, nor is any claim made that perfection of the genealogy of this family has been attained. Those descended from Nicholas Bayard and Catherine Livingston will find by consultation of the House of Alexander that they have a Royal lineage.

The history and genealogy of the Houstoun family is traced from the first ancestor as given in Crawford's History of the Shire of Renfrew, to the family who settled in Georgia and the Royal lineage of the line from Sir Patrick Houstoun is proven by his marriage to the daughter of Lord Bargany who in turn married a daughter of the first Marquis of Douglas of the Argyleshire.

The family of Bolton of Georgia has been already written and printed by Rev. Robert Bolton, Reginald Bolton and Dr. H. Car-ington Bolton, and the lines of the families are to be found in the Habersham and other Southern Families and the Lineage Book of the Order of Washington. Therefore to avoid a long repetition of names we simply trace the family to Robert Bolton of Philadelphia, Pa., and his children, several of whom removed to Georgia and Maryland, and some of their descendants to New York and Virginia. The point in the Bolton Lineage is to show the descent from the ancient families of Assheton, Hulton of Hulton Park, and the Royal Lineage through the families of Byron, Barnake, Dryden and de Tateshall to Mabel Albini, daughter of the Earl of Arundel, and hence to Charlemagne. As also the Hulton-Pilkinton marriage to the Earls of Warren, to which line through the Queen Bee of the Hive, Elizabeth the daughter of Hugh the Great Count of Vermandois, carries us back to the Houses of Capet and Charlemagne. Although not mentioned in this work, a branch of the Adams family of Georgia is doubly descended from the one of Byron through the Bolton as has been stated, the other from Reade of Virginia by a marriage of Robert Reade to Mildred, daughter of Sir Francis Windebanke and Lady Windebanke, daughter of Sir Edward Dymoke and Ann Talboys.

From the Houstoun family we find branches of the following lines descended, such as Johnston, McIntosh, Clinch, Sadler, Cole, Kollock, Anderson of Georgia, Waring, Molyneux, Hopkins, Demeré, Sullivan, Chisholm and others.

From the Lolton line, branches of the families of Habersham, Maxwell, Milledge, Lesesne, Colquitt, Demere, Adams, Elliott, McBryde, Newell, Turner, Bulloch and others.

The author has consulted many works and taken the requisite information from them, and takes this means of thanking the authors of the following: Ancient Families of Bohemia Manor, by Rev. Charles Payson Mallery; The Livingstons of Livingston Manor, by Edward Brookholst Livingston; The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record; Historic Homes and Families of the Middle Historic Families of America, by Spencer; The Great Genealogist, Burke's Commons and Peers, and Baronetage, &c.; Stemmata-Robertson et Durbin; Foster's County Families of Lincolnshire. Thanks are also due to the authors of The Peerages of Collins, Betham, Sharpe and Playfair, Lineage Book, Order of Washington and Scot's Peerage.

We also desire to thank the following: Dr. J. McL. McBryde, Blacksburg, Va.; Mrs. E. L. Cornman, Marietta, Pa.; General S. J. Bayard Schindel; James M. Johnston, Washington, D. C.; Gen. James Grant Wilson; Robert H. Kelby, of New York Historical Society; Mrs. James G. Tracy and others.

BAYARD

Arms: <sup>1</sup> Azure, a chevron between three escallops, or.

Crest: A demi-horse, argent.

Motto: Amor honor et justitia.

This ancient, noble and very prominent family of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania and Georgia took its rise in France, but the persecutions of the Huguenots appear to have driven them to Holland, where we find at an early day Rev. Nicholas Bayard, D. D., pastor of a French Church in Antwerp, and a professor in a College prior to 1559, who had a son, Rev. Lazare Bayard.

Among the prominent members of the family we find Colonel Nicholas Bayard, an Alderman of the City of New Amsterdam, or New York, who in the days of the early history of the Colony was one of its foremost citizens; as also Petrus Bayard, Alderman; Samuel Bayard, Colonel John Bubenheim<sup>1</sup> Bayard a most distinguished citizen who occupied many positions of prominence; the Delaware Bayards, five of whom became United States Senators: Dr. Nicholas Serri Bayard, who removed to Georgia and was one of the founders of the Georgia Medical Society in 1895: and his son, Nicholas James, a banker; as also Rev. George Livingston Bayard, Chaplain in U. S. Navy.

In New York the family descended from or was allied to the foremost families, among whom were the Stuyvesants, Van Cortlandts, Livingstons, Van Rensselaers, Schuylers, Cuylers, Van Brughs and others; in Pennsylvania and Delaware, such families as Asheton, Bassett and Hodge; and in Georgia descended from or related to the Glens, Kings, McIntoshes, Bullocks, Seays and others.

Among a large number of Huguenot refugees who were driven from France by the edict of October 25, 1683, were many who fled to Holland, among whom were the Bayards.

In May of the year 1647, Mrs. Samuel Bayard, who was Ann Stuyvesant, sister of Governor Peter Stuyvesant, left the Old World, having lost her husband who died in Holland prior to that date, and accompanied by her four children, Balthazar, Petrus, Nicholas and Catharine, arrived in New Amsterdam, now New York. Judith, the sister of Samuel Bayard, had married the Director General, Peter Stuyvesant, and thus there was a double relationship between the families of Bayard and Stuyvesant.

We will now proceed to give the genealogy of this ancient family, which in every way became one of the foremost in America.<sup>2</sup>

This line as heretofore accepted begins with Rev. Nicholas Bayard, a pastor in Holland in 1590, who it is stated married Blandina Condé and had Lazare Bayard, who married 1607, Judith de Vos and had Samuel Bayard, who married Ann

<sup>2</sup>See records of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the various other sources in New York Historical and Biographical Record, New England Historic and Genealogical Register, Cornell History and Records of Europe, Mead, &c.

Stuyvesant, who arrived in New Amsterdam with her children in 1647, but the version as stated in the address on the genealogy of the family by General James Grant Wilson is as follows: (Certain it is, however, that the ancestor was Rev. Nicholas Bayard, there being no disagreement in regard to this matter it would appear.)

Samuel Bayard, who died in Holland before 1647, was the son of Rev. Balthazar Bayard or of another Samuel, married 1638, Ann Stuyvesant, daughter of Rev. Balthazar Stuyvesant, of Friesland<sup>1</sup>, and Margaret Hardenstein, Ann Stuyvesant being the sister of Director General Stuyvesant.

By this marriage of Samuel Bayard to Ann Stuyvesant there were:

I. Petrus Bayard (died 1690); married Nov. 4, 1674, Blandina Kierstede, who died in New York in 1702. She was daughter of Surgeon or Doctor Hans Kierstede, of Magdeburg, who married, June 29, 1642, Sarah Roelofs, a daughter of Jans Roelofs by his marriage to the celebrated heiress, Anneka Jans.

II. Balthazar Bayard, married 1664, Maria Lockerman.

III. Col. Nicholas Bayard, married 1663-4, Judith Varleth, daughter of Casper Varleth, whose brother Nicholas was Ambassador to Virginia from New Amsterdam.

IV. Catharine Bayard, married William De Meyer.

EXCURSUS GLEN.

This ancient family of Glen, of Linlithgow, Scotland, unquestionably descended from the family of Bar, as proved by the similarity of arms and by the assertion of several authors. In Linlithgow they were most prominent, holding at different times the position of Provost and being members of the Scotch Parliament. The line from which the Georgia branch derives its descent is apparently the following, as it is asserted that William Glen, of Charleston, S. C., was son of John Glen, of Linlithgow, and the arms of the Georgia family are those borne by the Linlithgow line. James Glen the elder, 1654-51, was Bailie and Provost of the Burgh. He had, besides others, John Glen, baptized Jan. 31, 1630, married Helen Roberson and had William Glen, baptized Dec. 14, 1656, married Helen Henderson and had: John Glen, baptized Sept. 13, 1677, who in point of time must have been the father of William Glen, born 1701, who seems to have gone to Philadelphia and met there Ann Alricks, daughter of Westbels Alricks, son of Hon. Peter Alricks, of Delaware, a very prominent citizen of that Colony or Province. Besides others, William Glen and Ann Alricks had: John Glen, Chief Justice of Georgia, 1719-73, who married Sarah, the daughter of Dr. Noble Wymberley Jones and Sarah, daughter of John Davis, Esq. Dr. N. W. Jones was son of Hon. Noble Jones and Miss Wymberley. Judge John Glen and Sarah Jones had, besides others: Noble Wymberley Glen, City Marshal of Savannah, Ga., who had: Sarah Glen, married to John Jones, and others, as fully stated.

Normal friends associates on his father's side, General Sir John
General Sir John, 1844

NOTE.—As the object of this short account of the Glens is merely to show the direct line of several in this book, we have omitted dates and other matters which will be fully set forth when the history of the Glen family, now nearly finished, is ready for publication. The history and genealogy of the families of Alricks and Wessells has been already published by Drs. Adams and Bulloch, as has the family of Noble Jones, of Georgia. It is proper here to state that William Glen removed to Charleston, S. C., at an early date and died there; his other son, John Glen, removing to Savannah, Ga.

The author has a full account of Glen, taken from the records sent him.

MCKENZIE—MCINTOSH.

Donald McKenzie, the ancestor of the Atwood family of Georgia, appears to have been one of the Highland Clan who accompanied John More McIntosh, the Highland Chieftain, to Georgia. He had granted to him by King George III a tract of land called "Oak Hill," near Darien, Ga. He married Mary Merriman, daughter it is said of an English officer, and it is stated that she came to Georgia in the family of General Oglethorpe. Among the early settlers in the Colony we find the name of Merriman. John Cooper, connected with the Jones family of Georgia, married a Miss Merriman.

Donald McKenzie and Mary Merriman had a daughter, Ann McKenzie, who lived all of her life of 141 years at "Cedar Point," a tract of land granted to William Johnston. She was born about 1733 and died in 1884. She married John McIntosh, and they had a son, John Lachlan McIntosh, who married Margaret McCulloch and had a daughter, Ann Margaret McIntosh, who married Henry Saelton Atwood and had:

I. James Alfred Atwood, married Ann Livingston Bayard.

II. Ruth Ann Atwood, married Dr. William Ellis at Dunwoody.

III. William Henry Atwood, married first, Miss Butts; second, Louise Butts.

<sup>1</sup>Marjory McIntosh, daughter of Col. William McIntosh, married James Spalding, of the family of Ashantilly, and had among others Elizabeth Spalding, who married — Wyly, from which marriage descended Ludwig M. Schmidt, who married Ann Rosalie Atwood.

The family of John McIntosh lived at Cedar Point, which was granted to William Johnston. Among the other settlers of the Darien Colony we find the McCullochs, Cuthberts, &c. (See History of Georgia.)

III. James Asheton Bayard, a most distinguished citizen, U. S. Senator, &c., was born July 28, 1767. Died Wilmington, Delaware, August 6, 1815; married 1795, Ann Bassett, daughter of Senator Richard Bassett, of Delaware, a prominent citizen, and had:

1. Richard Bayard, married Miss Carroll.

2. Caroline Bayard.

3. James Asheton Bayard, married Miss Francis, of Philadelphia.

4. Edward Bayard, married Miss Johnson of New York.

5. Mary Bayard.

6. Henry M. Bayard.

Balthazer Bayard<sup>2</sup>, of New Amsterdam, son of Samuel Bayard and Anna Suyvesant, married Maria Lockermans and had:

I. Samuel Bayard, born Sept. 20, 1665; died young.

II. Anaentje (Ariecantie) Bayard, born Nov. 18, 1667; bap-Nov. 29, 1667; m. Oct. 26, 1697, Samuel Verplank, son of Gelyn Verplanck and Hendrickje Wessells.

<sup>1</sup>The descendants of this line of Bayards were most distinguished and influential in the history of America.

LIVINGSTON.

This ancient and noble line extends back to a remote period, and in New York we find the family occupying many positions of prominence.

We will, however, begin the genealogy with Sir Andrew de Livingston, Sheriff of Lanark, 1293, whose grandson, Sir William Livingston, of Callendar and subsequently of Kilsyth, married Christian, daughter of Sir Patrick Callendar, and had: Sir John Livingston, who married, first, a daughter of Menteith of Kerse; and second, a daughter of Sir James Douglas, of Dalkeith, from whom descended the family of Kilsyth. Sir John fell in battle 1402 at Howden Hill, leaving by the daughter of Menteith of Kerse: Sir Alexander Livingston, who had:

I. Sir James Livingston, a Lord of Parliament, 1458, barony of Callendar.

II. Alexander Livingston, ancestor of Dunipace line.

Sir James, Lord Livingston, had a son James, second Lord, who was succeeded as third Lord by James Livingston who is considered to be the son of Alexander, supposed to be the second son of James, the first Lord.

James Livingston, third Lord Livingston, married Agnes, daughter of Sir John Houston of that ilk, and had: William Livingston, fourth Lord of Callendar, who married Agnes, daughter of Alexander Hepburn of Whitesome, and had:

I. Alexander Livingston, fifth Lord.

II. James Livingston, died prior to October 12, 1547; fell at the battle of Pinkie.

James Livingston, son of the fifth Lord, had: Rev. Alexander Livingston, Rector of Monymatrch, 1561, during the reign of Mary Queen of Scots. His son, Rev. William Livingston, minister of Monymatrch, had the noted Rev. John Livingston, of Ancrum (born 1603, died 1672); married Janet Fleming (born 1613, died 1690-4). Besides other issue there was Robert Livingston, born Dec. 14, 1671, at Ancrum, East Lothian, who went to the Colony of New York, where he had the grant of a tract of land called Livingston Manor, and hence was first Lord of the Manor. He married Alida Schuyler (born 1636, died 1729), and had, besides others, Philip Livingston, who had: Peter Van Brugh Livingston (baptized Nov. 2, 1710, died 1793). He married Mary Alexander (born Oct. 16, 1721, died Sept. 27, 1769). She was daughter of James Alexander<sup>2</sup>, who went to New Jersey and became Surveyor General of New Jersey, and in 1729 member of Governor Burnett's Council. James Alexander died 1759, married Mary, daughter of John Spratt of Winton, Scotland, who came to America. These Alexanders were of Royal lineage, tracing from Alister or Alexander, son of John, who married a daughter of Robert III. Peter Van Brugh Livingston and Mary Alexander had: Catherine Livingston, baptized Oct. 2, 1743; married April 17, 1760, Nichol's Bayard; died Nov. 2, 1773.

The direct line of Livingston of Canendar, from whom descends the Earls of Linlithgow, is as follows, as given in The Scot's Peerage:

Sir William Livingston married Christian Callendar and had: Sir William Livingston who had: Sir John Livingston, who married first a daughter of Menteith of Kerse. He married second, Agnes, daughter of Sir James Douglas of Dalkeith and was ancestor of Livingston of Kilsyth.

Sir John Livingston, by a daughter of Menteith of Kerse, had: Sir Alexander of Canendar, who married a daughter of family of Dundas of Dundas and had: James Livingston, first Lord, who by Marjorie had: James Livingston, second Lord, and probably Alexander whose son, Sir James, became third Lord, who married before 9 June, 1491 (died 1501), Agnes, daughter of Sir John Houston of that ilk and had: William, fourth Lord, who married Agnes, daughter of Herburn of Whitsome, and had:

- I. Alexander Livingston.
- II. Mr. James Livingston.
- III. William Livingston.
- IV. Margaret Livingston.

In the Addenda and Corrigenda of Scot's Peerage it is stated that Mr. James Livingston may have married and have been the father of Rev. Alexander Livingston of Monyabroch, ancestor of the Livingstons of New York. See also deduction by Mr. Edw. in Brockholst Livingston in his work.

In same Peerage the Livingstons of Kilsyth line are given as follows:

Sir John Livingston of Callendar married Agnes Douglas

Edward Livingston, son of above by Agnes Douglas, had: William Livingston, who married Elizabeth Graham of the House of Montrose and had: William Livingston, married 1544 Janet, daughter of Sir Robert Bruce of Airth and had, among others:

Elizabeth Livingston, married Gabriel Cunningham of Culgaith.

As has been shown, Gabriel Cunningham and Elizabeth Livingston had, among others, Janet, who married Sir Patrick Houston.

MENTEITH OF CARSE OR KERSE.

Maurice Menteith, of the ancient line of Earls of Menteith left two daughters:

- I. Isobel Menteith.
- II. Mary Menteith.

Mary, Countess of Menteith married Walter, third son of Walter, third High Steward of Scotland, and thus became fifth Earl of Menteith. The issue of this marriage were:

* May have been brother of Sir John following.

I. Alexander Menteith.

II. Sir John Menteith, who married and had, besides others: Sir Walter Menteith, ancestor of Menteith of Rusky and Kerse<sup>1</sup> or Carse.

This Walter Menteith of Rusky<sup>2</sup> had, besides others:

I. John Stewart, 1332, who married Marjory Sterling, daughter of Sir John Sterling of Carse and Alva, son of Sir John Sterling, Knight, of Carse and Alva, Sheriff of Stirling, 1244-1270, of Ochiltree, son of Sir Alexander Sterling of Cawdor, 1180-1245.

Sir John Stewart, or Menteith, and Marjory Sterling had, besides others, a daughter who married Sir John Livingston (his first wife) of Callendar and had issue (see Livingston).

Sir John Livingston married second, Agnes<sup>3</sup>, daughter of Sir James Douglas of Dalkeith, and thus became the progenitor of the Livingstons of Kilsyth.

Royal Lineage of Livingston of Callendar and New York from Dundas of Dundas.

According to Douglas<sup>4</sup>, the family of Dundas of Dundas has, in the opinion of the historians, descended from the noble and illustrious line of Dunbar, Earls of March, who also trace their descent from the Saxon kings of England through the Earls of Northumberland,

Cospatrik, 5th Earl of March, died 1139, had issue:

I. Cospatrik.

II. Uchtred, first of the line of Dundas, who obtained from Waldene his uncle the lands of Dundas. Uchtred had Helias who obtained by charter the estate and assumed the name of Dundas. He was succeeded by Serl de Dundas, 1170-1195, and thus the line runs down through many generations, to where its two branches of Dundas and Fingask<sup>5</sup> separate.

According to Scot's Peerage, and to Douglas, Sir Alexander Livingston of Callendar married a daughter of James Dundas of Dundas<sup>6</sup>, and had James Livingston, first Lord of Callendar, who was the progenitor of the family of the Lords of Callendar and Earls of Linlithgow. We thus see that the Livingstons of Callendar are of royal lineage.

The Dundas of Dundas and the Livingstons of Kilsyth who married into family of Dalkeith are both of royal descent, the latter being ancestor of Houston of Georgia.

<sup>4</sup> Under Livingston of Kilsyth the line is carried back from Gilbert Livingston, first Lord of Kilsyth, to Sir John Livingston, first Lord of Callendar, and thus to the royal lineage.

ALEXANDER.

In the history of The House of Alexander, Volume I, we find an account of the Alexanders of New Jersey and have deduced therefrom apparently correctly the descent of the family, for which see page 80 of that volume. This ancient line descends from Somerled, Prince of Argyle in 1140, who married Elfrida, daughter of Olave the Red, King of Man. From this marriage descended Ranald, who had sons Donald and Roderick McDonald. Donald McDonald had three sons:

- I. Roderick McDonald.
- II. Angus McDonald.
- III. Alexander McDonald.

The grandson of Angus was John McDonald, Lord of the Isles, who married Princess Margaret Stewart, daughter of King Robert III. of Scotland. By this marriage they had, among others, Alister or Alexander, progenitor of the McAlexanders or Alexander family.

Prior to 1505 a descendant of Alister or Alexander, younger son of the Lord of Lochaber, obtained from the House of Argyle a portion of the lands of Menstry.

Thomas Alexander de Menstry had a son, Andrew Alexander, who in 1526 had the life rent of the lands. He married Katherine Graham and had:

- I. Alexander Alexander.
- II. Andrew Alexander.

Alexander Alexander married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Robert Douglas of Lochleven, and had:

- I. Andrew Alexander of Menstry.
- II. William Alexander.

Andrew Alexander had two sons:

- I. Alexander Alexander, married Elizabeth Forbes, by whom he had:
  1. William Alexander, who had a son, William Alexander.
  2. James Alexander.
  3. John Alexander, Portioner of Pitgogar, in Perthshire, who married Margaret Dempster.

II. John Alexander of Middleton, who seems to have married Margaret Sinclair and had:

1. Alexander Alexander.
2. David Alexander, Ward of Muthill.
3. Patrick Alexander.

David Alexander had two sons:

- I. William Alexander.
- II. John Alexander, who was in the Rebellion of 1715 and migrated to New Jersey, where he became a lawyer, and a John, Surveyor General of New Jersey, and in 1760 he contracted a marriage with Maria Spratt, widow of Samuel Prevost and daughter of John Spratt, of Wigton, Galloway, Scotland, a man of prominence in the Colony. John Spratt married Mary De Peyster, widow of Paulius Schrick and daughter of Johannes De Peyster by Cornelia Lubberts, a relative of the de la Noys.

James Alexander and Maria Spratt had among others:

- I. William Alexander<sup>1</sup> (General), claimed title of Earl of Sterling.
- II. Mary Alexander, who married Peter Van Brugh Livingston, President of the New York Provincial Congress and a prominent citizen, by whom they had, among others: Catharine Livingston, who married Nicholas Bayard and had:

1. Mary Bayard, married Hon. William Houstoun, of Georgia.
2. Anna Livingston Bayard, married Dr. Nicholas Serri Bayard, son of Col. John Bayard.
3. Eliza Bayard, married John McIntosh, son of George McIntosh and Ann, daughter of Sir Patrick Houstoun.
4. Catharine A. Bayard, married Robert Charles Johnson, of New York.

In Scott's Peerage, written by different authors under Sir J. Balfour Paul, there is a discrepancy between the account stated and that given by the author of the House of Alexander, and it would appear that the former is in error.

In the first place the author seems to deny the descent of the Alexander line from the Lord of the Isles, thus contradicting the account given by historians; and in the second place denies that in several things, for instance that there was only one Andrew Alexander of Menstry, whereas although there were Andrews who though they may not have been styled as of Menstry, still may have considered themselves of Menstry, as indeed they were of that descent. The article seems prejudicial against General William Alexander, who it would appear did have a right to the title of Earl of Sterling.

The following is the account given by The Scot's Peerage, as stated by the claim of General Alexander, which is very much the same as has been deduced by the author, taken from The House of Alexander, which see:

Andrew Alexander of Menstrie, 1526, had:

- I. John Alexander in Gogar.
- II. Alexander Alexander.

John in Gogar had: Alexander in Milnab who had: David in Muthill who had: James Alexander who went to New Jersey and had, among others: William Alexander (died about June 12, 1753); married 1743, Sarah, daughter of Philip Livingston, of Livingston Manor.

The Peerage makes John in Gogar the son of Andrew first. The "House of Alexander" makes the descent of John in Gogar or Pidgeon the son of Andrew who was the third son of James of Rosedale, Scotland. It seems to think that the Scotch and American claimants may have descended from John Alexander, the great-great-grandson of the first Andrew; therefore the deduction of the Alexanders of America seems to be correct.

General William Alexander, Lord Stirling, was awarded the Earldom of Sterling by a jury, but Parliament would not allow his claim. Nevertheless he assumed the title.

Now according to The Scot's Peerage the line of the Alexanders would be as follows:

Thomas Alexander of Menstrie 1505 had: Andrew Alexander 1526 who married Catharine Graham and had:

- I. Alexander Alexander, married second, Elizabeth Forbes.
- II. Andrew Alexander, the Presbyter.
- III. William Alexander

Alexander Alexander and Elizabeth Forbes had:

- I. Andrew Alexander.
- II. William Alexander, married Elizabeth Coutts and had: I. Alexander, first Earl of Sterling, who had: I. William. II. Anthony. III. Henry. William had William, grandson of Earl of Sterling, who succeeded as second Earl. The line becoming extinct, Henry, the third son, became third Earl, who was succeeded by his son Henry, fourth Earl, succeeded by his son Henry, fifth Earl. The title becoming extinct, fell into abeyance, and was claimed by William Alexander of America.

Descent of Family of McDonald.

Godfrid, surnamed Godfrid of Crovan, King of Man, son of Harold the Black, of Royal family of Norway, King of Man, had Olave the Red, who had Gofred the Black, whose daughter was Ragnhildis or Rachel or Dfrica, 1140. She married Somerled, Prince or Lord of Argyle, and had:

Reginald, who married Femia, sister of Thomas Randolph, Earl of Moray, or as the Scot's Peerage says, "Or may have married a daughter of Ranulph, son of Dugall, ancestor of the famous Earl."

Reginald had: Donald De Isla, ancestor of the McDonalds, who married a daughter of Walter the High Steward, and had, among others: "Alexander McDonald, ancestor of the McAllisters of Loup, and of Alexander of Menstrie, Earl of Sterling."

Stephanus Bayard<sup>1</sup>, son of Samuel Bayard and Margarita Van Cortlandt, married March 12, 1725, Alida Vetch, daughter of Col. Samuel Vetch and Margaret Livingston, and had:

- I. Samuel Bayard.
- II. Nicholas Bayard.
- III. William Bayard, baptized June 15, 1729.

Note.—Douglas' Peerage gives a much fairer account of case of General William Alexander, as also a more full descent of his line.

<sup>2</sup> These lines were taken from the History of the Cornell Family, page 281, where the dates of birth, &c., are given. Colonel William Bayard was loyal to the Crown. He died in 1804.

V. Stephanus Bayard.

VII. Robert Bayard, married Rebecca Althorpe.

VIII. Margaret Bayard.

Colonel William Bayard (1729-1804) married Elizabeth Cornell and had:

I. Catharine Bayard, married Duncan P. Campbell.

II. Susan Bayard, married Benjamin Woolsey Rodgers.

III. William Bayard, married Catharine Hammond.

IV. Maria Bayard, married Duncan P. Campbell.

V. Justine Bayard, married Joseph Blackwell.

VI. Robert Bayard, married Elizabeth McEvers.

VII. Harriet Elizabeth Bayard, married General Stephen Van Rensselaer<sup>1</sup>, eldest son of Stephen Van Rensselaer, the last Patroon, and Margaret Schuyler.

ST. CLAIR.

This ancient and noble family is so well known in history that it would be useless to go into a long account of the "Lordly Line of High St. Clair." The genealogy of Major General Arthur St. Clair is also so well known that we refrain from giving further than that distinguished General, who rendered such valuable aid to the struggling Colonies.

General Arthur St. Clair married May 14, 1760, in Trinity Church, Boston, Phoebe Bowdoin Bayard, the daughter of Balthazer Bayard, probably son of Jacobus Bayard and Millegond de Kay, and had the following issue:

I. John Murray St. Clair.

II. Donald St. Clair.

III. Arthur St. Clair.

IV. Elizabeth St. Clair.

V. Louise St. Clair, married Colonel Samuel Robb.

VI. Jane St. Clair.

VII. Margaret St. Clair.

<sup>1</sup>General Stephen Van Rensselaer, the Patroon, married second, Cornelia Paterson, daughter of Governor William Paterson, of New Jersey. She was the niece of Col. and Mrs. Bayard. The Paterson's eldest son, William, married Harriet Elizabeth, daughter of William Bayard, of New York City.

Sarah Rodgers, born October 20, 1849, daughter of Benjamin Woolsey Rodgers and Susan Rodgers, married William Paterson Van Rensselaer, son of General St. Clair, April 4, 1864. William Paterson Van Rensselaer.

As we are not going further in the genealogy of the St. Clairs nor the descendants we will therefore carry on the line only of one descendant. Louise St. Clair married Col. Samuel Robb and had, among others, Margaret Balfour Robb, who married William Todd Baldrige and had: George Washington Baldrige, who married Emily Arnold and had: Mary St. Clair Baldrige, who married Charles Henry Blackburn.

Pierre Bowdoin<sup>1</sup> married Elizabeth ——— and had four children, I. James Bowdoin, married Sarah Campbell, July 13, 1706. She died Dec. 21, 1713. He died Sept. 8, 1747, at the age of 71. Their daughter Mary<sup>2</sup> married, Feb. 12, 1729, Balthazer Bayard, perhaps son of Jacobus, son of Balthazer Bayard, and had:

I. Mary Bayard.

II. James Bayard.

III. William Bayard, born about 1737.

IV. Mehitable Bayard.

V. Phoebe Bayard, married General Arthur St. Clair.

VI. Sarah Bayard, married John Elliott.

The following data has been kindly sent me by Thomas F. Bayard, Esq. Wilmington, Delaware:

- (1) Thomas Francis Bayard, son of Thomas Francis Bayard and Louisa Sewell Lee.
- (2) Thomas Francis Bayard, son of James Asheton Bayard and Anne Francis.
- (3) James Asheton Bayard, son of James Asheton Bayard and Anne Bassett.
- (4) James Asheton Bayard, son of James Asheton Bayard and Ann Hodge.
- (5) James Asheton Bayard, son of James Bayard and Mary Asheton.
- (6) James Bayard, son of Samuel Bayard and Susannah Boucnelles.
- (7) Samuel Bayard, son of Petrus Bayard and Blandina Kierstadt.
- (8) Petrus Bayard, son of Samuel Bayard and Anna Wariku Stuyvesant.
- (9) Samuel Bayard, son of Lazare Bayard and Judith Beyens.
- (10) Lazare Bayard, son of N. Nicolas Bayard and ——— [Blandina Condé].

The J. A. B. (4) was the twin brother of Col. John Bubenheim Bayard.

<sup>3</sup> Mary Bowdoin died July, 1780 — New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vols. 8 and 10.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF COL. JOHN BAYARD.

Colonel John Bubenheim Bayard (he dropped the name Bubenheim) was born in the Great House, Bohemia Manor, Cecil Co., Maryland, on August 11, 1738, and died in New Brunswick, N. J., on January 7, 1807. He was one of the most distinguished members of this ancient family, holding many positions of importance.

He signed the non-importation agreement Oct. 25, 1765; was delegate to Provincial Convention, July 15, 1774; on Committee of Safety and Council of Safety. He had also quite a military career and was a gallant officer. In 1775 he was a Major of the Second Battalion and then Colonel of Associators and served during a period of two years. He was in the battle of Princeton and was personally thanked by General Washington for services rendered. He was also in the battles of Germantown, Brandywine and Valley Forge. He appears to have served in a military capacity and as a member of the State Board of War until after Dec. 4, 1777.

He had a seat on the Supreme Executive Council, Oct. 31, 1781; was Judge of High Court of Appeals, March 15, 1783; member of Continental Congress 1785; removed from Philadelphia, Pa., to New Brunswick, N. J., and became Mayor of that town in 1790, and Judge of Court of Common Pleas. We thus see what a distinguished gentleman he was: Patriot, soldier, and statesman.

In the reign of Malcolm IV. of Scotland, 1153-65, the grant of a Barony was made to Hugo De Padvinan, and the name of the Baron was changed to Hugh's-town: afterward, when surnames came in vogue, the name was eventually corrupted to Houstoun. Several descendants of this Hugo received Knighthood, and in 1668 the representative of the family was created a Baronet by King Charles II. of England. When General Oglethorpe went to Georgia, the fifth Baronet, Sir Patrick Houstoun, accompanied him, and founded this ancient and illustrious family of Georgia, who helped lay the foundations of the commonwealth. Well may Georgia be proud of her Johnstons, for James Johnston was the publisher of the Georgia Gazette, within which many facts of history would have been forever lost, and his brother, Dr. Lewis Johnston, of Edinburgh, practiced medicine with Dr. John Irvine in Georgia, the latter whom married (his second marriage), his daughter, Elizabeth Johnston. #### CUNNINGHAM OF CRAIGENDS.

This ancient and noble family, a cadet line of Cunningham, Earl of Glencairn, descends from Sir Robert Cunningham, who married Anne, daughter of Sir John Montgomery of Ardrossan, who married Agnes of the Isles; son of Sir John Montgomery by Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Sir Hugh Eglinton by Egidia Stewart, half sister of Robert II. and widow of Sir James Lindsay of Crawford.

Sir Robert Cunningham and Anne Montgomery had: Alexander Cunningham, created a Lord of Parliament as Lord Kilmauers and later first Earl of Glencairn, who married a daughter of Sir Adam Hepburn of Hailes, second Lord Hailes, who married Elyne or Helen Home, daughter of Sir Alexander Home, 1429, who married Marjota, daughter of John, son of Sir Robert Lawder of the Biss by Agnes Fellow of Falshaw.

*It is here proper to state that the accounts of descent of the later Frasers vary so much as between Scott's Peerage and others that it becomes difficult to state the exact lineage of the lines as given between McKenzie and Scott's Peerage.

Sir Robert Lawder of the Bass was son of Sir Alan Lawder who married Alicia Campbell, daughter of Sir Colin Campbell* of Lochawe, grandson of Sir Colin, son of Sir Neil Campbell by Mary Bruce, sister of King Robert Bruce and daughter of Robert Bruce, Earl of Carrick, of Royal lineage, by Donald, Earl of Mar, and Helen, daughter of Lewellin, Prince of North Wales.

Sir Alexander Home, first Lord Home, 1428, was son of Alexander Home of Home and Lundlass by Jean Hay, daughter of Sir William Hay of Locherworth.

It has been shown that the Earl of Glencairn married Margaret, daughter of Sir Adam Hepburn, second Lord Hailes. He was the son of Sir Patrick Hepburn, first Lord Hailes, who married twice; his second wife at time of his death was Elene Wallace. Sir Patrick was son of Sir Adam Hepburn of Hailes, son of Patrick Hepburn by a daughter of the family of Vaux or de Vallibus of Dirliton; son of Sir Patrick Hepburn and Agnes. (See Scot's Peerage for these lines.)

Having shown the illustrious descent of Cunningham of Glencairn, we will now proceed to state the descent of the Craighends lines.

Alexander Cunningham, first Earl of Glencairn,<sup>2</sup> married as has been stated a daughter of Sir Adam Hepburn, second Lord Hailes. By this marriage, besides others, there was:

I. William Cunningham of Craighends, who married first, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Walter Stewart of Arthurly, by whom there was:

1. William Cunningham, who married Mies, daughter of Sir John Campbell of Lorn and had: Gabriel Cunningham (slain at battle of Pinkie, 1547), who married Elizabeth Livingston, daughter of William Livingston by Janet, daughter of Robert Bruce of Airth<sup>3</sup>; son of William Livingston, descended in direct line from Sir John Livingston of Callendar (who fell at the battle of Hemeldon Hill) by his second marriage, to Agnes, daughter of Sir James Douglas of Dalkeith, who married Agnes Dunbar, daughter of Sir Patrick Dunbar by Isabella, daughter of Thomas Randolph, Earl of Moray, and Isabel Stewart; son of Sir Thomas Randolph and Lady Isabel Bruce, daughter of Robert Bruce, Earl of Carrick.

<sup>5</sup> See Baifour Paul's Peerage, wherein the author seems to contradict the accepted pedigree as to Thomas Randolph having married the sister of Robert Bruce. However, he does not say that there is some close relationship between the two families. The pedigree also affects the Dunbar descent, which is not stated.

* Sir Colin Campbell married Mariota or Margaret, daughter of John, son of Dougal, son of Sir Neil by the Princess Mary Bruce.

Before proceeding with the further pedigrees of Dunbar, it is of interest to note that two families in this work descend from the Livingstons of Callendar: the Livingstons of New York and the Houstons of Georgia.

Sir Andrew de Livingston, Sheriff of Lanark 1291, had a grandson, Sir William de Livingston, who married Christian, daughter of Sir Patrick Callendar, and had: Sir John de Livingston, who fell at the battle of Homildon Hill, 1402. He married first, a daughter of Monteth of Keise, from whom the Livingstons of Livingston Manor of New York descend.

Sir John de Livingston married second, Agnes Douglas, daughter of Sir James Douglas of Dalkeith by Agnes Dunbar, and this branch was styled Livingstons of Kilsyth which followed in direct line, as has been shown, descends to Elizabeth Livingston, daughter of William Livingston and Janet Bruce, carries us to the marriage of Gabriel Cunningham of Craigends, who married Elizabeth Livingston and had:

I. Janet Cunningham who married Sir Patrick Houston of that ilk, and had: I. Sir John Houston who married Mary, daughter of Sir James Sterling of Keir, and had: Sir Ludovick Houston who married Mary, daughter of Maxwell of Newmarch, and had: Patrick (died 1632), who had: Sir Patrick Houston, first Baronet, who married Ann, daughter of Sir John Hamilton, Lord Bargany, by a daughter of William Douglas, first Marquis of Douglas, and had, among others, a second son, Sir Patrick Houston, who went to Georgia and by failure of heirs male of elder lines, became the fifth Baronet.

To proceed further with the Douglas descent, would say that Sir James Douglas was the progenitor of the Earls of Morton. He, as has been stated, married Agnes Dunbar, daughter of Sir Patrick Dunbar and Isabella, a daughter of Thomas Randolph, Earl of Moray, 1412, and Isobel Stewart: son of Sir Thomas Randolph by Lady Isobel Bruce, daughter of Robert Bruce, Earl of Carrick, of Royal lineage.

Sir Patrick Dunbar was son of Sir Alexander, son of Patrick Dunbar, seventh Earl of Dunbar and March; son of Patrick Dunbar, sixth Earl and Euphemia, daughter of Walter, third High Steward of Scotland. Patrick, sixth Earl, was a son of Patrick, fifth Earl, by Ada, daughter of King William I., "The Lion"; and Patrick, the fifth Earl of Dunbar, descended from Gospatrick, Earl of Dunbar and March, son of Maudred or Malquin by Edith or Alghitha, daughter of Uchtred, Earl of Northumbria, by his wife Elgiva, daughter of Athel II., King of England; and Malquin was the son of Crinan thethane, Seneschal of the Isles 1003, by Bethoc or Beatrix, daughter of Malcolm II., King of Scotland.

This we ascertain the historical descent of the Houstons of Georgia from the Scottish nobility of the Middle Ages.

NOTE.—This entire article is based largely on The Scot's Peerage, by Sir James Balfour Paul.

STERLING OF KEIR.

Lukes of Strevelyn had: Sir William of Keir, 1439, who married first, Margaret Cunningham and had: Sir William, 1471-1502, who married (as his second wife) before 1475, Margaret, daughter of James Charlenton of Ruthvendenny, and had: Sir John 1506, who married Margaret Forrester, daughter of Sir Walter Forrester of Torwood, and had: Sir James Sterling, 1539-1588, who married, as his second wife, Jean Clisholm of that ancient line and had: Margaret Sterling, who married Sir John Houston of that ilk.<sup>1</sup> (They had a charter of Houston 1603.).

Royal Lineage of McIntosh of McIntosh and Borlum.

Shaw, 1179, stated to be descended from McDuff, Thane of Fife, married Egidia Montgomery, daughter of Hugh Montgomery, Chief of his name, and had: Shaw 1219, married Mary Sandhams and had a second son, William Macintosh, who married Beatrice Lernaouth of Fife and had: Shaw, who married a daughter of Thane of Caith and had: Fergulard Macintosh, who married Mora, daughter of Angus or Eneas Og McDonald of the Isles, and had: Angus or Eneas McIntosh, who married Eva, only daughter of Gilpatrick Macdougall Vis Gillichattan, Chief of Clan Chattan, and had: William McIntosh who married second, Margaret McLeod, daughter of Roderick Mor McLeod of Lewis by Margaret daughter of John McDonald, Lord of the Isles, and had: Malcolm Bg. McIntosh, who married Mora McRanald, daughter of Ranald McRanald, first of Meldart, and had, among others: 1. Lachlan McIntosh of McIntosh, and also a third son, Allan McIntosh of Holme, whose descendant, John McIntosh of Holme, went to Georgia.

Lachlan McIntosh of McIntosh married Catherine, daughter of Sir Duncan Grant, Chief of the Grants and first of Freuchie, and had: Lachlan Beg McIntosh who married Jean or Janet Gordon, daughter of Sir Alexander Gordon of Lochinvair, who married Jean Kennedy, daughter of John, second Lord Kennedy, by Elizabeth, daughter of Alexander Gordon, Earl of Huntly, and Elizabeth, daughter of William, Lord Clrichton.

John, second Lord Kennedy, was son of John Kennedy, first Lord, by Katharine, daughter of Herbert Maxwell, first Lord Maxwell; and Gilbert, first Lord Kennedy, was son of James Kennedy by the Princess Mary, daughter of Robert III; son of Sir Gilbert Kennedy by Agnes Maxwell, daughter of Sir John Maxwell of Pollock by his wife Isabel Lindsay, daughter of Sir John Lindsay and Editha, half sister of Robert II. Thus we see that the McIntoshes are of several lines of Royal descent.

Lachlan McIntosh and Jean Gordon had: William McIntosh, who married Margaret daughter of Alexander Ogilvie of Gardi and Baskford, first Baron, and had: Lachlan Mor McIntosh, who married Agnes McKersze, daughter of Kenneth McKersze, first of Huntly by Lady Mary Stewart, daughter of John Stewart, first Earl of Atholl, by Lady Mary, or Janet, daughter of Archibald Campbell, second Earl of Argyll. John Stewart, second Earl of Atholl, was son of John Stewart, first Earl by Lady Eleanor St. Clair, daughter of William St. Clair, third Earl of Orkney; and John Stewart first Earl of Atholl, was son of Sir James Stewart, the Black Knight of Lorn, by Joanna, widow of King James I. and daughter of John, Earl of Somerset, son of John, Duke of Lancaster, son of Edward III. of England. Thus again we see the McIntosh of Royal lineage.

Lachlan Mor McIntosh and Agnes McKenzie had: William McIntosh, who married 1594, Elizabeth Innes, daughter of Robert Innes of Innermarkie, of Royal descent, and had: Lachlan McIntosh, who married 1633, Helen Gordon and had: William McIntosh, who married Mary, daughter of William Baillie VII. of Dunain, and Elizabeth Forbes; son of Alexander Baillie and Catherine Munro of Milltown; son of William Baillie and Catherine Munro of Foulis, daughter of Robert More Munro by Margaret Ogilvie, daughter of James Ogilvie of Cardell, and Janet, daughter of Sir Alexander Gordon of Lochinvair by Jean Kenney, daughter of John, second Lord Kennedy; son of Gilbert, first Lord; son of James Kennedy by Princess Mary, daughter of King Robert III. Thus through the Baillies of Dunain and the Munros do the McIntoshes again descend from the Royal line of Scotland.

William McIntosh and Mary Baillie had: Lachlan McIntosh of Knocknagael, who married Mary Lockhart, daughter of John Lockhart, Baillie of Inverness, and besides others had: John More McIntosh who went to Georgia and lived and died there, leaving issue. (See "Baillie of Dunain.")

John McIntosh, third son, styled "of Lynvilhug," had: Donald, Lachlan, and John McIntosh who also went to Georgia and had: William and Angus McIntosh, and possibly others.

MCINTOSH OF HOLME.

Allan McIntosh, third son of Malcolm Beg McIntosh and his wife, Mora McDonald, married Janet Fraser, daughter of Hugh, third Lord Fraser; son of Hugh Fraser who married Janet, daughter of Thomas Dunbar, Earl of Moray<sup>1</sup>, descended from the Dunbars, Earls of Dunbar and March, of Royal lineage, as Thomas Randolph, Earl of Moray, whose daughter Isabella married Sir Patrick Dunbar, descended from Patrick, fifth Earl, by Ada, daughter of King William I., "The Lion."

Allan McIntosh and Janet Fraser had: William Mor McIntosh, who had Donald McIntosh who married Katherine Rose and had: William McIntosh, who had: Alexander McIntosh of Holme who had Angus McIntosh of Holme 1671, married Elizabeth Baillie and whose apparent descendant, John McIntosh of Holme, 1724, married Janet Baillie. In Georgia we find John McIntosh of Holme in 1733 as one of signers of Creek Treaty as a witness.

The McIntoshes of Holme have several other lines of Royal lineage, as follows:

John McDonald, first Lord of the Isles, married Anne, heiress of the McRuories, and had: Robert McDonald, first Lord of the Isles, who married a daughter of Walter Stewart, brother of King Robert II. By this marriage there was: Mora McDonald (or McRanald), who married Malcolm Beg McIntosh and had, among others:

<sup>1</sup>Scott's Peerage thinks the marriage doubtful, but other authorities give it. Both Anderson, page 71, and McKenzie, page 83, in the Frasers, give Janet as having married Allan McIntosh.

I. Lachlan McIntosh of McIntosh.

III. Allan McIntosh, ancestor of McIntosh of Holme, who married Janet Fraser and had: William Mor McIntosh.

Lachlan McIntosh and Allan McIntosh were grandsons of William McIntosh by his second marriage, to Margaret, daughter of the laird Mor McLeod of Lewis by Margaret McDonald, daughter of John, Lord of the Isles. (See McLeod History by McKenzie).

William Mor McIntosh had Donald McIntosh, who married Katherine Rose, of Royal lineage, and thus as has been stated the line goes down to John McIntosh of Holme, who went to Georgia. Through the Baillies these McIntoshes would also be of Royal Lineage, as apparently Elizabeth and Jean were of the family of Baillie of Dunsin. Through the McLods, McIntosh of Holme descended from Olave the Black, King of Man. At least four persons, branches of McIntosh of McIntosh, went to Georgia:

1. McIntosh of Boriun, whose line in America is Chief of Boriun.
2. McIntosh of Lynvilluig.
3. McIntosh of Holme.
4. McIntosh of Mala or Mallow.

NOTE.—Besides several military officers, we find the following positions were held by the Johnstons during the Colonial period of Georgia:

Hon. Lewis Johnston, Member of His Majesty's Council, March, 1779.

Lewis Johnston, Chief Justice, Treasurer.

Lewis Johnston, Jr., Provost Marshal, Dec. 27, 1781; and Postmaster, Savannah, Jan. 17, 1782.

ERRATA.—On page 27, "II. George Houston, first of Johnstone" should be: II. George Houston, first of Johnstone.

In footnotes, same page, "Burk's" should be: Burke's.

NOTE.—There is a slight discrepancy between the version of the family of Houston as given by Crawford and that stated on a chart furnished by James M. Johnston, Esq. In Crawford, Sir Patrick Houston is stated to have by Janet Cunningham of Craighalls a son John who married a daughter of Sterling of Kesh. In the Johnston chart it is stated that Sir Patrick of Colt married a daughter of Sterling of Kesh, who had a son John, father of Sir Ludovick; whereas Crawford states that John, who married daughter of Sterling of Kesh, was the father of Sir Ludovick. The only discrepancy then is that Sir Patrick of Colt, according to Crawford, was a brother of John instead of the father. Again, between Sir Ludovick and Sir Patrick first of Kesh, there is a son Patrick, died 1678 (Crawford), father of Sir Patrick, the Baronet, which would make the first Baronet a grandson of Sir Ludovick instead of son as stated in Johnston chart. The discrepancy is so slight as to be of very little moment and it is otherwise correct except that in last part of chart Sir Patrick, not Sir John, his son, married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir James Johnston, first of Kesh, and the descent from Sir Patrick to Sir James Johnston is as follows:

A chart showing the descent from Sir James Johnston, first of Kesh, to James M. Johnston, Esq. and Eugenia Marion Johnston, and drawn by George Jones A. Lock, shows all the branches.

BOLTON

BOLTON OF BOLTON.

This ancient family, according to Dugdale, descended from the Saxon Earls of Mercia, who descended from the Saxon Kings. We find the Boltons settled at the Brookhouse, Blackburn, Lancashire, where, says Fuller, the family had continued in good repute.

The following is the direct line of Bolton<sup>1</sup>, the whole having been published by Rev. Robert, Dr H. Carrington and Reginald Bolton, Esq. See also Habersham Book.

Robert Bolton, 1487, married Ann Rushton, and had William Bolton, of Little Boulton, 1550, and of Blackburn, 1523; died, 1553. His son, Adam Bolton, 1559, had Richard Bolton, of Brookhouse and of Ramisdreave Lanes, 1537, had Adam Bolton, of Brookhouse, born 1547; died 1593; married Elizabeth, died 1600; had Gyles Bolton, of Brookhouse, in 1625; died 1642, and had John Bolton, born 1616, Parish Clerk of Blackburn; died 1638, and had John Bolton, Esq., of Wales, Yorkshire, born at Brookhouse, Blackburn; baptized at St. Mary's Church, March 6, 1658; died about 1693-4; married Ann, who died about 1694, and had Robert Bolton, Esq., born Wales, Yorkshire, July 26, 1683; emigrated 1713; buried at Philadelphia, Penn., June 25, 1742; married Ann, widow of Robert Clay, of Sheffield, Yorkshire, daughter of Winlock Curtis, Esq., of Kent County, Delaware, and had:

I. Robert Bolton, who moved to Savannah, Ga., about 1740; born January 1, 1722; died May 4, 1789; married Susannah Mauve, born 1729; died 1762; and had, besides others, Anne Bolton, born May 2, 1752; died April 27, 1818; married Nathaniel Adams, of South Carolina. Ancestor of branches of families of Adams, Habersham, Colquitt, Lewis, Newell, Siler, Footman, King, Bulloch, &c. &c.

II. John Bolton, married Eleanor Dougherty.

III. Ann Bolton, married, first, Wood; second, John Mercer.

IV. Mary Bolton, born April 5, 1724; married, December 26, 1740 (died January 4, 1763), Hon. James Habersham, Governor of Georgia, 1771; born Beverly, Yorkshire, 1715; went to Georgia, 1736; died 1775; son of James Habersham, of Beverly, Yorkshire, England, who married 1712, Elizabeth Sissison.

V. Rebecca Bolton, d. s. p.

According to Dugdale and Bolton, &c., the Boltons descend from the Saxon Kings, through the Earls of Mercia, were Lords of Bolton and prominent citizens and Governors of Blackburn School. In America, they were citizens of prominence and connected to many of the best people of the North and South, and were early settlers in Pennsylvania and Georgia; in the latter State prominent citizens, &c.

ASSHETON

This ancient and prominent family had as its ancestor, Orme Fitz Edward, who married Emma, daughter of Albert de Cresley, Baron of Manchester, and had:

I. Sir Thomas.

II. Roger Fitz Orme, who had: 1. Sir Thomas, Lord of Assheton, whose son, Sir John Assheton, living 1335, was a member of Parliament 1329. He married Margery, daughter of Sir John Byron and widow of Sir Edward Talbot. Besides Gilbert he had an elder son, Sir Robert Assheton, Vice Chamberlain to King Edward III. Sir Robert Assheton, by his wife, Elizabeth, had: Thomas de Assheton, who married Eleanor, daughter of Sir John Buckley (Foster says Eumhley), and had: Sir John Assheton, Knight of the Shire of Lancaster, 1385, who married Margaret, daughter of Perkyn de Legh of Lyme, and had: Sir John de Assheton who was drowned at Norham. He married a daughter of Sir Robert Standish of Standish. There is no record to show who this Sir Robert of Standish was the son of, but in taking a survey of the line we find that in 1384 there was a Robert de Standish, Sheriff of the same County, whose daughter in point of time must have been the one who married Sir John de Assheton. The line of Standish as we find it would then be as follows: Thurston de Standish, 1221, married Marjorie, daughter and co-heiress of Robert de Hulton, and had: Ralph de Standish who had: Jardon de Standish, 1271, (married Margaret), grandfather of John de Standish, Lord of Standish 1332, who had:

- I. William de Standish.
- II. Henry de Standish.
- III. Edward de Standish.
- IV. Ralph de Standish.
- V. Robert de Standish.
- VI. John de Standish.

Henry de Standish,<sup>1</sup> the second son, had by his wife Joan issue, from whom descended Ralph de Standish, High Sheriff, who had an elder son Lawrence de Standish, who married in 1398, Lora, daughter of Sir Roger de Pilkington, and had: Sir Alexander de Standish who was living in 1422, whose son, Sir Alexander de Standish, married Constance, daughter of John Gerard Bryn, and had:

1. Ralph de Standish.
2. Lawrence de Standish.
3. Abson de Standish.
4. Robert de Standish.
5. Peter de Standish.

Sir John de Assheton, who was drowned at Norham, had by a daughter of Sir Robert de Standish a son, Sir John de Assheton, Knight of the Bath, Seneschal of Bayeux, who married Margaret, daughter of Sir John Byron of Clayton, knighted by

Henry VII. at Bosworth, died 1448. and had: Sir Ralph Assheton, second son, first called of Middleton, paid homage to King Henry VI., was Knight Marshal of England, and in 1482 created a Knight Baronet.

He married Margaret, heiress of Middleton, daughter of John Barton of Middleton, and had: Sir Ralph Assheton, his second son, who married Margaret, heiress of Great Lever, daughter of Adam Lever of Great Lever, and had: Ralph Assheton of Great Lever, who married Eleanor Hulton, daughter of Adam Hulton of Hulton Park, of an ancient family, and had among others: Ralph Assheton, who married Margaret Orrell and had: Eleanor Assheton<sup>1</sup>, who married William Bolton of Little Bolton and Blackburn, who died in 1353: Son of Robert Boulton of Boulton 1487, who married Ann Rushton, daughter of Nicholas Rushton.

We thus see that the ancient family of Bolton is descended from the distinguished family of Assheton and from the Standishes who are connected to so many ancient lines, and from the Buckleys, Byrons, Hultons and others.

William Bolton and Eleanor Assheton* had: Adam Bolton of Blackburn 1539, whose son, Richard Bolton of Brookhouse 1545, had: Adam Bolton of the Brookhouse, died 1593, and had: Gyles Bolton of the Brookhouse, died 1644: married Margaret, and had John Bolton, Parish Clerk, born 1615, died 1668, and had: John Bolton of Wales, Yorkshire, born 1638, died 1714, whose wife was Ann, died circa 1714, and had: Robert Bolton, born 1688, died 1742, emigrated to Philadelphia, Pa., 1718: married Ann Curtis, born 1690, married 1720, died 1747: widow of Robert Clay and daughter of Winlock Curtis and Ann Bowers, daughter of Benjamin Bowers and Elizabeth Dunster, cousin of Henry Dunster, first President of Harvard College.

* Eleanor Assheton may have been the daughter of Ralph Assheton and Margaret Orrell.

This chart is intended to show the descent of the family of Bolton from the Asshetons and other families connected with the family of Bolton. It is not intended to show the descent of the family of Bolton from the Asshetons, Byrons, etc.

Winlock Curtis was son of John Curtis, a member of Penn's Council. Robert Bolton and Ann Curtis had:

- I. Robert Bolton, went to Georgia 1740; married Susannah Mauve.
- II. John Bolton, married Eleanor Dougherty.
- III. Ann Bolton, married first, Wood; second, John Mercer.
- IV. Mary Bolton, married James Habersham.
- V. Rebecca Bolton, d. s. p.

Adam de Hulton and Alicia de Hulton had, among others: Elena de Hulton, who married Ralph Assheton of Great Lever and had a daughter or grand-daughter Eleanor Assheton, who married William Bolton of Little Bolton and Blackburn, 1523-5, died 1550, son of Robert Boulton of Boulton 1487, by Ann, daughter of Nicholas Rushton.

Ralph Assheton of Great Lever was son of Sir Ralph Assheton, second son, who was of Great Lever, who married Margaret Lever, heiress of Great Lever, daughter of Adam Lever of Great Lever; son of Sir Ralph Assheton of Middleton, second son, by Margaret, daughter of John Barton of Middleton; son of Sir John de Assheton, Knight of the Bath 1429, by Margaret, daughter of Sir John Byron of Clayton by Marjory Booth, daughter of John Booth by a daughter of Sir Henry Trafford of Trafford; son of Sir Thomas Booth by Ellen, daughter of Thomas de Workesley of Workesley; son of John de Booth and Agnes, daughter of Sir Gilbert de Barton; son of Thomas, son of William Booths, living 1275, by Sibill, daughter of Sir Ralph de Bereton; son of Adam de Booths.

John de Hulton, brother of Richard de Hulton, sons of David de Hulton and Agnes Blackburn, married Joan, daughter of Richard de Manchester, and had:

- I. Henry de Hulton, who married Agnes, daughter of Thomas Bowden of Bowden.

- II. Agnes de Hulton, married Adam de Lever of Great Lever.

Henry de Hulton and Agnes Bowden had:

1. John de Hulton, who married Alicia daughter of Adam or Allan de Radclyffe by Avice, daughter of Hugh Brethwood. Adam de Radclyffe was son of Robert de Radclyffe of Radclyffe

Tower; son of Adam de Radclyffe by a daughter of Culwen Vel Curwen of Camerton, son of William de Radclyffe by Cecelia, de Montbegon, Lady of Kirkland.

John de Hulton and Alicia de Radclyffe had: William de Hulton, who married a daughter of Ardern of Hawarden and had: John de Hulton of Farnsworth, who married Isabella, daughter of William de Atherton, and had:

1. James de Hulton of Farm, married Elizabeth Radclyffe.
2. Eleanor de Hulton, married Roger de Hulton of Hulton.

James de Hulton of Farm and Elizabeth Radclyffe had: William de Hulton, who married Margaret, daughter of Hugh Tyldesley, and had: John de Hulton, of Farnsworth, who married Elizabeth Pilkington<sup>1</sup> and had:

1. Alicia de Hulton, married Adam de Hulton of Hulton and had: Elena de Hulton, who married Ralph Assheton of Great Lever and had, among others, a daughter or granddaughter Eleanor, who married William Bolton of Little Bolton and Blackburn, son of Robert Boulton of Boulton by Ann, daughter of Nicholas Rushton.

Eleanor Assheton and William Bolton had: Adam Bolton of Blackburn 1539, who had: Richard Bolton of Brookhouse 1545, who had: Adam Bolton of the Brookhouse, died 1593, who had: Gyles Bolton of the Brookhouse, died 1644, married Margaret, died 1621, and had: John Bolton, Parish Clerk, born 1615, died 1688, who had: John Bolton of Wales, Yorkshire, born 1658, died 1714; married Ann, died circa 1714, and had: Robert Bolton, born 1686, died 1742; emigrated to America 1718; married Ann Curtis, born 1690, married 1721, died 1747 (widow of Robert Clay and daughter of Winlock Curtis, son of John Curtis, of Kent, in Delaware, member of Penn's Council), and had:

- I. Robert Bolton, born 1722, died 1789; married 1747, Susannah Mauve, born 1729.
- II. John Bolton, born 1726, died 1784; married 1771, Eleanor Dougherty.
- III. Ann Bolton, married first, Wm.; second, John Fisher.

<sup>1</sup> Foster's Charts, Lancashire Families.

IV. Mary Bolton, married Governor James Habersham.

V. Rebecca Bolton, d. s. p.

We thus see the Bolton family descends from the families of Assheton, Byron, Lever, Hulton and many others, and of twice Royal lineage through the family of Barnke who married James Byron, and through the Hulton-Pilkington line.

According to the "Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies," by Burke, Sir John Assheton married second, a daughter of Sir John Byron named Mary—others call her Margaret, which Margaret is stated by "Stemmata Robertson et Durbin" to have married twice: First Sir William Atherton; second, Sir Maurice Berkeley. She may have married a third time. Now Foster, in his "Families of Lancashire," states that in order to correct certain errors he has compiled these tables of Lancashire families, and he distinctly shows that Sir John Assheton married a second time a daughter of John Byron of Clayton.

Sir John Assheton by his second marriage to Mary or Margaret Byron had, besides others; Sir Ralph Assheton, who married Margaret, daughter of John Barton of Middleton, and had: Ralph Assheton, his second son, who married Margaret, daughter of Adam Lever of Great Lever, and had: Ralph Assheton of Great Lever, who married Eleanor Hulton, daughter of Adam Hulton of Hulton Park, of an ancient family, and had: Ralph Assheton who married Margaret, daughter of William Orrell of Turton Tower, and had, besides others: Eleanor Assheton. Foster's History of Families of Lancashire. Now according to the Harleian MSS., referred to in the Memoirs of the Bolton family page 191, it is stated that Eleanor Assheton was the daughter of Ralph, son of Richard, which is a mistake, as Ralph Assheton was the brother of Richard and these were sons of Ralph Assheton, Lord of Great Lever. Now Eleanor Assheton was unquestionably the daughter of one of the Ralph Asshetons descended of the Byron marriage, and although Foster does not give the marriage the author of this article has assigned to Eleanor Assheton, the daughter of Ralph Assheton and Margaret Orrell, the Turton line, married to the Earl of Derby, and the name of the daughter of the Eleanor Assheton referred to in Harleian MSS. There may have been an Eleanor prior to this one, but the main point to be considered is that an Eleanor Assheton descended from Ralph Assheton (and Margaret Lever, son of Sir Ralph Assheton and Margaret Barton), son of Sir John Assheton by second marriage to Mary or Margaret Byron, daughter of John Byron, Esq., of Clayton, County Lancaster, England. Thus then do we see that the Bolton family who went first to Philadelphia, Pa., and then to Georgia and Maryland, was of Royal lineage. Many are the descendants of this ancient family whose lines from Bolton can be easily deduced.

NOTE.—Foster mentions an Eleanor Assheton, daughter of Ralph Assheton and Margaret Orrell, but not her marriage; but The Harleian MSS. states that an Eleanor Assheton married William Bolton and proves descent from Adam de Lever of Great Lever. See Foster's Genealogical Charts of Lancashire Families, Burke's Commoners, Memoirs of Bolton Family by Reginald and H. Carrington Bolton, Burke's Extinct Baronage, for Tateshall, Robertson et Durbin families, and records of Dr. J. McL. McBryde.

In Foster's account of Hulton family there is a marriage of a Hulton to Elizabeth Pilkington, undoubtedly descended from the Earl of Warren of Royal lineage.

NOTE.—The Bolton Book, by Dr. H. Carrington Bolton and Reginald Bolton, quotes from the Harleian Manuscript, see page 114, the marriage of William Bolton to Eleanor Assheton. These gentlemen, after the publication of the Memoirs of Bolton by Rev. Robert Bolton, decided to look further into the records and republish the work on Bolton. "The Stemmata Robertson et Durbin," in the Library of Congress, is a wonderful record and gives many families who are of Royal lineage, among whom we find the family of de Tateshall, descended from the Aibin family, hence from Charlemagne. This chart shows the marriage of a daughter of de Tateshall to Dryby, and thence to Barnake or Bernack to a daughter of the latter to Sir James Byron and also states the Byron lineage. See also Sharpe's Peerage and Murville Chart, Burke's Commoners, Extinct Baronage, Peerage, &c., Haberkham and Other Southern Families, by Bullock, and charts of the families of Assheton, Hulton of Hulton Park, and others in Charts of the Counties of Lancashire and Yorkshire by Foster.

It is here proper to state that Burke, under Assheton, states that Sir Thomas Assheton, eldest son of Sir John Assheton by his first marriage, married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Byron, and that Sir John Assheton married a second time a daughter of Sir John Byron, and that Foster continues the junior line from this marriage; and also that Foster states in his preface that he desires to correct certain errors and does so in his history or charts of Lancashire. He also gives Sir Thomas Assheton as having married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Byron of Clayton, and says also that Sir John Assheton married second a daughter of John Byron, Esq., of Clayton, County Lancashire. Stemmata Robertson et Durbin only gives the marriage of Sir Thomas Assheton to Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Byron of Clayton, and does not give the marriage of Sir John Assheton to a daughter of Sir John Byron. Other authorities settle this point and show a positive descent. See further back.

BYRON

The ancestor<sup>1</sup> of this ancient line was Ralph du Burun, Burun, Biron, or Byron, of Horstan Castle, living in 1086, who was the possessor of several Lordships, and from whom Lord Byron, the famous poet, descends. His son Hugh du Burun, Lord of Horstan Castle, County Derby, had a son Hugh du Burun, Lord of Horstan Castle, temp. Henry II., and he had a son, Sir Roger or Ralph de Burun, living 1216, who married Nicola de Verdon, daughter of Roland de Verdon, and had Robert de Byron (the name appears to have at this time been changed to Byron), who married Cecelia Clayton, an heiress, daughter of Theirass, son of Richard Clayton of Clayton, County Lancaster. By this marriage Robert de Byron had: Robert de Byron, Lord of Clayton, living 1189, who married Maud, living 1292, and had: John de Byron, Lord of Clayton, Governor of York, who obtained Rochdale by marriage. He was living 1295; married Jean or Joan, living 1300, heiress of Rochdale, stated to be the widow of Sir Robert Holland and daughter of Sir Baldwin Thias or Sir Baldwin Teutonicus or de Tyas, and had Sir John de Byron, Lord of Clayton, living 1318, who married Alice Banastre, cousin and heiress of Robert Banastre of Hyndelay, County Lancaster, and had: Sir Richard de Byron, M. P., Lord of Clayton and Codenay, living 1308-1348, died ante 1349, who by his second marriage, to Elizabeth, had Sir James Byron, died ante 1350; married Elizabeth Berwake, Barnake or Barnack<sup>2</sup> and had:

I. Sir John Byron, knighted by Edward III., Siege of Calais.

II. Sir Richard Byron, married Joan de Clevelin, See list daughter and co-heiress of William de Colewick of Colewick, Nottingham, who married Joan de Peche, daughter of John de Peche and Alice Hayward, daughter of Sir William Hayward and Joan de Huntingfield, daughter of Sir Savir de Huntingfield.

By this marriage there was Sir John de Byren of Clayton, Member of Parliament 1428, who married Marjory, daughter of John Booth of Barton, son of John Booths by a daughter of Sir Henry Trafford of Trafford; son of Sir Thomas Booth of Barton by Ellen, daughter of Thomas de Workesley of Workesley; son of John Booth by Agnes Barton, daughter of Sir Gilbert de Barton; son of William Booth, living 1275, by Sibil, daughter of Sir Ralph de Bereton; son of Adam de Booth or Booths.

Sir John Byron of Clayton and Marjory Booth had issue:

1. Richard Byron.
2. Sir Nicholas Byron, married a daughter of Sir John Boteler of Beausay, and was ancestor of Lord Byron.
3. Margaret Byron, married first, Sir William Atherton; married second, Sir Maurice Berkeley. (She perhaps married third, Sir John de Assheton as his second wife.)
4. Elizabeth Byron, married Thomas Assheton.
5. Jane Byron, married William Radclyffe.
6. Catharine Byron, married William Brereton.
7. Helena Byron, married ———

Of this marriage of Sir John Byron was a Margaret or Mary Byron who, according to authorities cited below, married Sir John de Assheton as his second wife. Sir John de Assheton's son by first marriage, Thomas Assheton, married Elizabeth Byron.

NOTE.—Sir John Byron had a daughter Margaret or Mary who, according to both Burke and Foster, married as his second wife Sir John de Assheton, as heretofore stated. Foster says daughter of John Byron, Esq., of Clayton; Burke says Sir John of Clayton. Other authority places her as daughter of Sir John Byron by Alice Boteler, but it was the son Nicholas who married Alice Boteler. See Robertson et Durbin.

HULTON OF HULTON PARK

This ancient family<sup>1</sup> of the County of Lancashire, England, is found at an early date and may be considered one of the best of the old landed gentry of England, embracing amongst its alliances many families of standing, such as the Blackburns, Radclyffes of Radclyffe Tower, Levers, Leghs, Harringtons, Pilkingtons and others. The interest in the family centers in the fact of its connection with the family of Assheton, through which descends the family of Bolton of Georgia and through which descend branches of the families of Habersham, King, Colquitt, Bulloch, Adams, McBryde, Newell, Turner and others.

The first of this ancient name was Blethyn de Hulton, County Lancaster, temp. Henry II., who had Jervith or Yarwrit, who had Richard, whose son was David de Hulton, senior Lord of Hulton, who married Agnes de Blackburn, daughter of Adam, son of Henry de Blackburn, and had:

I. Richard de Hulton of Hulton Park, temp. Edward I.; married Margeria, daughter of Robert de Radclyffe of Radclyffe Tower, son of Adam de Radclyffe by a daughter of Alan Culwen Vel Curwen of Camerton; son of William de Radclyffe of Radclyffe Tower by Cecelia de Montbegon, Lady of Kirkland.

II. John de Hulton, who married Joan, daughter of Richard de Manchester.

We will subsequently show that these two lines come together several times, and will proceed to give the elder line first.

Richard de Hulton and Margeria de Radclyffe had:

1. Adam de Hulton, who married Avicia, daughter of Alicia de Eccles, and had:

1. Roger de Hulton, who married Alyne, daughter of Adam de Lever of Great Lever, who had married Agnes Hulton, daughter of Henry de Hulton by Alice, daughter of Thomas de Eborac.

<sup>1</sup> We only give the lines which affect the descent of these families which descend from the line, as there were many other children of the family.

Roger de Hulton and Alyne Lever had:

1. Roger de Hulton, who married Agnes Legh, daughter of Robert Legh of Adlington, County Chester; son or descendant of Robert Legh of Adlington by Matilda, daughter of Sir John de Arderne by Elena de Wartenays; the son of John Legh who married Elen, daughter of Robert Dent.

John Legh assumed the name of Legh from his mother's side of the house, his mother, Agnes Legh, having married second, William Venables, the second son of Sir William Venables, Baron of Kinderton. Agnes Legh was the daughter of Richard de Legh, descendant of William de Legh of Wetchall, son of Hamon, Lord of Mediely or Mediely.

Roger de Hulton and Agnes Legh had: Adam de Hulton of Hulton Park, who had: Roger de Hulton, who married a kinswoman, Elena de Hulton, daughter of John de Hulton of Farnsworth by Isabella, daughter of William Atherton; son of William de Hulton by a daughter of Arderne of Hawarden; son of John de Hulton by Alicia, daughter of Adam or Allan de Radclyffe of Radclyffe Tower and Avicce, daughter of Hugh Birchwood; son of Robert de Radclyffe of Radclyffe Tower; son of Adam de Radclyffe by a daughter of Adam or Alan Culwen Vel Curwen of Camerton, a kinswoman; son of William de Radclyffe of Radclyffe Tower by Cecelia de Montbegen, Lady of Kirkland.

Roger de Hulton of Hulton and his spouse Elena de Hulton had: Roger de Hulton of Hulton, who had: Roger de Hulton, who married Katherine, daughter of Sir James Harrington of Wolfedge; son of Sir Nicholas Harrington; son of Robert de Harrington by a daughter of Banister; son of Robert de Harrington or Harington, who married Agnes de Cancefield, sister and heiress of William de Cancefield; son of Richard de Cancefield by Alice, sister and heiress of Michael, son of William de Cancefield; son of Michael Fleming, all Lords of that manor.

Roger de Hulton and Katherine Harrington had:

1. Adam de Hulton, who married Alicia, the daughter of John de Hulton of Farnsworth and Elizabeth Pullington, whose descent appears to be as follows:

<sup>1</sup> Foster's Charts.

Leonard de Pilkington, Lord of Pilkington or Stand, had :

I. Sir Edward Pilkington.

II. Sir Thomas Pilkington, who married Isabel, daughter of Sir John Warren of Poynton<sup>1</sup>, a younger branch of the Earls of Warren, heirs of the Royal lines through Elizabeth de Vermandois, daughter of Hugh the Great, Count of Vermandois. From Sir Thomas Pilkington descended Sir Thomas, who had Sir James. As this is the only family of Pilkington, Elizabeth must descend from this line.

John de Hulton of Farnsworth was son of William de Hulton and Margaret, daughter of Hugh Tyldesly; son of James de Hulton of Farnham and Elizabeth Radclyffe; son of John de Hulton of Farnsworth and Isabella, daughter of William Atherton; son of William de Hulton by a daughter of Ardern of Hawarden; son of John de Hulton by Alicia, daughter of Adam or Allan de Radclyffe; son of Henry de Hulton and Agnes Bowden; son of John de Hulton and Joan de Manchester; brother of Richard, sons of David de Hulton and Agnes Blackburn.

Adam de Hulton and Alicia de Hulton had, among others : Elena de Hulton, who married Ralph Assheton of Great Lever and had a daughter or granddaughter Eleanor Assheton, who married William Bolton of Little Bolton and Blackburn, 1523-5, died 1550, son of Robert Boulton of Boulton 1487, by Ann, daughter of Nicholas Rushton.

Ralph Assheton of Great Lever was son of Sir Ralph Assheton, second son, who was of Great Lever, who married Margaret Lever, heiress of Great Lever, daughter of Adam Lever of Great Lever; son of Sir Ralph Assheton of Middleton, second son, by Margaret, daughter of John Barton of Middleton; son of Sir John de Assheton, Knight of the Bath 1429, by Margaret, daughter of Sir John Byron of Clayton by Marjory Booth, daughter of John Booth by a daughter of Sir Henry Trafford of Trafford; son of Sir Thomas Booth by Ellen, daughter of Thomas de Workesley of Workesley; son of John de Booth and Agnes, daughter of Sir Gilbert de Barton; son of Thomas, son of William Booths, living 1275, by Sibil, daughter of Sir Ralph de Bereton; son of Adam de Booths.

II. Agnes de Hulton, married Adam de Lever of Great Lever. Henry de Hulton and Agnes Bowden had:

1. John de Hulton, who married Alicia, daughter of Adam or Allan de Radclyffe by Avice, daughter of Hugh Birchwood. Adam de Radclyffe was son of Robert de Radclyffe of Radclyffe Tower; son of Adam de Radclyffe by a daughter of Culwen Vel Curwen of Camerton, son of William de Radclyffe by Cecelia de Montbegon, Lady of Kirkland.

John de Hulton and Alicia de Radclyffe had: William de Hulton, who married a daughter of Arden of Hawarden and had: John de Hulton of Farnsworth, who married Isabella, daughter of William de Atherton, and had:

1. James de Hulton of Farn, married Elizabeth Radclyffe.

2. Eleanor de Hulton, married Roger de Hulton of Hulton.

James de Hulton of Farn and Elizabeth Radclyffe had: William de Hulton, who married Margaret, daughter of Hugh Tyldesley, and had: John de Hulton, of Farnsworth, who married Elizabeth Pilkington<sup>1</sup> and had:

The Family of Legh or Leigh of Adlington and Lyme.

Hamon, Lord of the Mediety of High Leigh, temp Henry II., was father of William de Legh of West Hall in High Lee, who had Richard de Legh, whose daughter Alice by a second marriage to William Venables of Bradwell, second son of Sir William Venables of Bradwell, Baron of Kinderton, had John, who assumed the name of Legh and was proprietor of Knutsford Booth. John Legh by a first marriage had a son, Sir John Legh. John Legh of Knutsford married, second, Ellen, daughter of Robert Dent of Cheshire; but according to The History of the Commoners he married a daughter of Thomas De Corona, by whom he had: Robert De Leigh of Adlington, who married, according to one authority, Sibil, daughter of Henry Hanford of Hanford; but according to The History of the Commoners by Burke, he married Matilda, daughter of Adam De Norlay, and had:

- I. Sir Robert Leigh of Adlington.
- II. Sir Peter Leigh, of Maxfield and Lyme.

Sir Robert Leigh of Adlington married Matilda, daughter of Sir John De Andern of Alford and Alvody, and had a son, Robert Leigh of Adlington.

Sir Peter Leigh of Lyme married Margaret, widow of Sir John Savage of Clifton, Knight, and daughter of Sir Thomas Danvers.

Knight of Bradley, and had: Sir Peter Leigh, Knight Banneret, who married Joan, daughter of Sir Gildert Haydock, Knight, and had: Sir Peter Leigh, Knight, who married Margaret, daughter of Sir Richard Mayneux.

As there was a marriage of Assheton to a daughter of Parkyn De Lelah of Lyme mentioned by Foster, and as there was a marriage of a Hulton to a Leigh of Adlington by same author, but as neither he nor Burke gives the parentage of either, nor the marriages, we consider the descent of Assheton from one of the three lines of Lyme, and the descent of the Hulton-Leigh marriage from either the first or third Robert Leigh of Adlington.

THE ROYAL LINEAGE

of branches of the families of Bolton, Adama, Habersham, King, Fulloon, Colquitt, Newell and others, from Charlemagne the Great, through the families of Byron, Hulton, Barnake or Berwake, Dryby, and de Tateshall.

Charlemagne or Charles the Great married Heldegrade of Suabia and had: Louis the Pious, who married Judith of Altorp and had: Charles the Bold, who married Hermentrude of Orleans and had: Louis III. Balbus, who married Adeheia and had: Charles IV. of France, who married Edgiva of England and had: Louis IV., who married Gerberga of Germany and had: Charles, Duke of Lorraine, who married ——— and had: Gerberga, heiress of the House of Charlemagne, who married Lambert, Duke of Brabant, and had: Lambert II., Duke of Brabant, who married Oda of Lorraine, daughter of Gothello, Duke of Lorraine, by Uria, daughter of Brengius, King of Italy.

From this marriage we find Henry II., Duke of Brabant, who married Adela of Thuringia and had: Godfrey Barbatus, Duke of Brabant, who married Ida de Namur and had: I. Adelysa, who married, first, Henry I., King of England, without issue. She married second, William de Albini, Earl of Arundel and in right of wife Earl of Sussex; son of William de Albini and Maud Bigod; son of Roger de Albini by ——— Mowbray, sister of De Mowbray, Earl of Northumberland.

William de Albini and Adelysa of Lorraine had: William de Albini, second Earl of Arundel, who married Ales, daughter of Alexander I., King of Scotland, and had: William de Albini, third Earl of Arundel, who married Maud, daughter of James de St. Hilary. She married second, Roger de Clare, Earl of Pembroke. William de Albini, third Earl of Arundel, and Maud de St. Hilary had:

I. Mabel de Albini, who married Sir Robert de Tateshall and had: I. Sir Robert de Tateshall, who had: Jane de Tateshall,<sup>1</sup> who married Sir Robert Dryby and had: Ales Dryby, who married Sir William Barnake or Bernake and had: I. Elizabeth Barnake, who married Sir James Byron and had a son, Sir Richard Byron, who married Joan de Colewick, daughter of William de Colewick, and had: Sir John Byron of Clayton, who married Margaret Booth and had, besides others: Elizabeth Byron, who married Sir Thomas Assheton, son of Sir John Assheton by his first marriage to Jane Seville, and thus carried on the eldest line of Assheton.

According to the "Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies," by Burke, Sir John Assheton married second, a daughter of Sir John Byron named Mary—others call her Margaret, which Margaret is stated by "Stemmata Robertson et Durbin" to have married twice: first, Sir William Amerton; second, Sir Maurice Berkley. She may have married a third time. Now Foster, in his "Families of Lancashire," states that in order to correct certain errors he has compiled these tables of Lancashire families, and he distinctly shows that Sir John Assheton married a second time a daughter of John Byron of Clayton.

Sir John Assheton by his second marriage to Mary or Margaret Byron had, besides others: Sir Ralph Assheton, who married Margaret, daughter of John Barton of Middleton, and had: Ralph Assheton, his second son, who married Margaret, daughter of Adam Lever of Great Lever, and had: Ralph Assheton of Great Lever, who married Eleanor Hulton, daughter of Adam Hulton of Hulton P. of an ancient family, and had: Ralph Assheton, who married Elizabeth, daughter of William Arden of Turton

Tower, and had, besides others: Eleanor Assheton (Foster's History of Families of Lancashire). Now according to the Harleian MSS. referred to in the Memoirs of the Bolton Family, page 104, it is stated that Eleanor Assheton was the daughter of Ralph, son of Richard, which is a mistake, as Ralph Assheton was the brother of Richard and these were sons of Ralph Assheton, Lord of Great Lever. Now Eleanor Assheton was unquestionably the daughter of one of the Ralph Asshetons descended of the Byron marriage, and although Foster does not give the marriage the author of this article has assigned to Eleanor Assheton, the daughter of Ralph Assheton and Margaret Orrell as the Eleanor who married William Bolton which in point of dates would be the Eleanor Assheton referred to in Harleian MSS. There may have been an Eleanor prior to this one, but the main point to be considered is that an Eleanor Assheton descended from Ralph Assheton (and Margaret Lever), son of Sir Ralph Assheton (and Margaret Barton), son of Sir John Assheton by second marriage to Mary or Margaret Byron, daughter of John Byron, Esq., of Clayton, County Lancaster, England. Thus then do we see that the Bolton family who went first to Philadelphia, Pa., and then to Georgia and Maryland, was of Royal lineage. Many are the descendants of this ancient family whose lines from Bolton can be easily deduced.

DE VEAUX—FOULKE

André De Veaux, the Huguenot, is found in South Carolina as early as 1714, and it is said that he came of a family resident in Brittany. In 1754 he made his will as André De Veaux, gentleman, leaving to his sons, Andrew, James and John De Veaux, and grandson Jacob, son of Israel De Veaux, &c.

From Honorable Colonel James De Veaux the Bulloch family of Georgia descend, as also a branch of Roosevelt through Bulloch, from whom the late ex-President, Col. Theodore Roosevelt descended. From Andrew De Veaux, son of André, the families of Foulke and others of Philadelphia, Pa., descend.

Andrew De Veaux, second, married Hannah, daughter of the gallant Col. John Palmer, who was on the Ogeethorpe expedition in 1740 against the Spaniards. He married Elizabeth Bellinger, daughter of Edmund Bellinger, first landgrave of the name in South Carolina.

Andrew De Veaux and Hannah Palmer had: Andrew De Veaux, third, who married Catharine Barnwell, daughter of John, son of Col. John Barnwell, who was a very prominent citizen of South Carolina, Secretary of the Province in 1712, and Commander of the South Carolina Expedition against the Indians in 1712. Also, John De Veaux, fourth, married Berners.

Andrew De Veaux and Catharine Barnwell had:

I. Col. Andrew De Veaux, who married Ann Maria Verplanck and had.

<sup>1</sup>See History and Genealogy of Families of Bellinger and De Veaux.

1. Julia De Veaux, married Col. John Hare-Powel.
2. Augusta De Veaux, married Philip Verplanck.

Col. John Hare Powel, of Powelton (now part of Philadelphia, Pa.), assumed the name of Powel by act of the Legislature. He was the son of Robert and Margaret (Willing) Hare, of Philadelphia, Pa., and grandson of Richard and Martha Harford Hare, of Limehouse (now a part of London, England), and also maternally grandson of Charles and Ann (Shippen) Willing, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Col. John Hare Powel and Julia De Veaux had, among others: Julia De Veaux Powel, who married William Parker Foulke and had, among others, George Rhyfedd Foulke, who married Jean Du Val Leiper Kane and had issue.

DU PONT

As a branch of the family of Foulke descends from the Bayard family, and as a branch of the ancient family of du Pont of Delaware descends from Bayard, Foulke and De Veaux, we have inserted in its appropriate place the descent of those lines.

As the du Ponts of South Carolina belong to one of the various lines of du Pont, we herewith insert a short account of the South Carolina family, as given the author by Coleman du Pont, Esq., of Wilmington, Delaware, but arranged in different form, Jean du Pont, born in France in 1631, and died 1710; married, September 17, 1653, Marie du Bosc, who was born June 6, 1632, and died March 5, 1676. Their son, Abraham du Pont<sup>1</sup>, was born at Rouen, France, December 3, 1653, and went to London 1681, where he became naturalized as a British subject April 15, 1693. He emigrated to America about 1694, and went to South Carolina about 1695-6, and died in St. James Parish, Goose Creek, about 1720.

He married, June 3, 1697, at Charleston, S. C., Ann Faucheraud, born at Port des Barques, France, in 1678. She was the daughter of Charles Faucheraud and Ann Vignaud.

Abraham du Pont and Ann Faucheraud had:

- I. Anne du Pont, born in St. James Parish, Goose Creek, in 1709; married Daniel Deane.

DUNWODY

Dr. James Dunwody went to Georgia about 1770 and was one of the first physicians to practice medicine in Liberty County, Ga., then St. Johns Parish. He became a member of the first Executive Council of Georgia during the time of the Revolutionary War. He married Mrs. Esther Splatt, née Deane, daughter of Abraham Deane<sup>2</sup>, born 1704, and Ann du Pont, and had:

<sup>2</sup> See pages 153 and 154, Habersham Book, in which he is called Abraham Deane; and Daniel Deane by the du Pont Chart.

- I. Col. James Dunwody, married Elizabeth West Smith and had issue.
- II. John Dunwody, married, June 7, 1808, Jane Bulloch and had issue.
- III. Esther Dunwody, married Senator John Elliott and had:
  - I. Hester A. Elliott, married Major James Stephen Bulloch, his first wife.

NOTES.

Pages 12 and 23 It has now been definitely determined that the descent of the Balthazer Bayard who married Mary Bowdoin is as follows:

Balthazer Bayard, who married Mary Lockermans, had, among others: Jacobus Bayard, who married Hillegond de Kay and had: Balthazer Bayard, who married Mary, daughter of Pierre Bowdoin, and was the ancestor of the St. Clairs and others.

We have been unable to get the line of Richard Henry Bayard, who married a Miss Carroll, of Maryland; but among the grandchildren we find Richard Henry Bayard and Ellen Howard Bayard, of Baltimore, Maryland, whose mother was Ellen Howard, who as we see descended from the Carroll and Howard families, and others mentioned in this work.

The Royal descent of Alexander as given on page 21 is more in conformity with the descent of Alexander from McDonald than that on page 19. Omit on page 19 lines 11 and 12 from the top and consider that Alexander, number III, son of Donald McDonald, as the progenitor of Alexander of Metstry.

According to one version of the descent of Bayard, as furnished by a member of the family, the line would be as follows from the Rev. Nicholas Bayard: Lazare Bayard married Judith Beyers and had: Samuel Bayard, born 1610; married, 1623, Ann Stuyvesant and had the issue as given. Lazare Bayard is also stated to have married Judith de Vos. He may have married her as second wife, although it is also stated that Rev. Balthazer Bayard married Judith de Vos. It therefore appears most probable that the line of descent as given on page 2 is the correct one, and that the name of Balthazer came into the family through Rev. Balthazer Stuyvesant, whose daughter Ann married Samuel Bayard. Hence we deduce the descent of the line as follows:

Rev. Nicholas Bayard, a pastor of a church in Holland, had: Lazare Bayard, married Judith Beyers, whose son (possibly grandson) Samuel married Ann, daughter of Rev. Balthazer Stuyvesant, and had those already stated.

It is interesting to note that a branch of Forté and Du Pont descended not only from the Bayard and the Kane families, but through the Hare-

Powels from Col. Andrew De Veaux, son of Andrew De Veaux and Catharine Barnwell; son of Andrew De Veaux and Hannah Palmer, daughter of Col. John Palmer and Elizabeth, daughter of Landgrave Edmund Fellinginger, one of the Colonial nobility of South Carolina. The last Andrew De Veaux was son of André De Veaux, the Huguenot, who was in South Carolina in 1714.

It is also pleasant to note that Doctor James Dunwody, who was one of the earliest practitioners in Georgia, and of the first Executive Council in 1775-6, married Esther Splatt, widow, daughter of Abraham or Daniel Deane, born 1704, who married Ann Dupont. There was a Gideon Dupont who was church warden of St. James, Goose Creek, 1746. As the South Carolina DuPonts were remotely related to the Delaware line, they both came evidently from the noble line of du Pont. The late distinguished James Dunwody Bulloch, C. S. Agent abroad, descended from the Elliotts, Dunwody's and Duponts.

Windebanke, in St. Martins in the Fields. Sir Thomas Windebanke married Frances, daughter of Sir Edward Dymoke, and had, among others: Mildred, who married Robert Reade of Paecomb (page 123, Middlesex Pedigrees, Harleian Publications). See in Preface, article in relation to Reade.

The author takes the pleasure of thanking Thomas F. Bayard, of Wilmington, Del.; Miss Constance Bayard, of Dauphin, Pa.; Miss Florence Bayard Kane, John Kent Kane, Mrs. LaFarge and others for aid furnished in getting up the later records of this distinguished line of Bayard of Pennsylvania and Delaware.
